II Council Discussion and Decisions
SUMMARY OF PROCESS LEADING UP TO JULY 12, 1993 COUNCIL HOUSING WORKSHOP

A series of meetings was held with the City's housing partners in preparation for the July 12 Council Housing Workshop. The purpose of the meetings was to engage these partners in helping to identify for City Council areas of consensus and lack of consensus on the major policy issues and funding decisions confronting Council today. At the meetings convened by staff, each of the major housing constituencies agreed upon the spokesperson and main message they would like to convey to Council on July 12. To provide Council with a preview, the following perspectives and funding requests were raised by various constituencies in the meetings with staff, and will likely be shared with Council for its deliberation at the workshop.

1. The need for the City to continue and strengthen its emphasis on inner city revitalization utilizing existing housing resources, making this the highest priority for housing development and preservation dollars. It was also felt that Council's policies should continue to permit the construction of new scattered site transitional housing as funds permit in the years to come. Estimated cost to the City for the latter was estimated at $750,000 for one 50-unit multifamily project.

2. The need for a local rent subsidy program to help close the affordability gap for tenants in the City Within a City (CWAC) area. Estimated cost $500,000 per year for two years. NOTE: There was no consensus on whether such a program should be tenant-based (already approved by Council but not implemented using federal HOME funds) or unit-based (which can only be done with Innovative Housing Funds and would require trade-offs).

3. The need to recognize the important role that community-based organizations are playing and will increasingly play in carrying out Council's CWAC initiative. Since lack of administrative and technical capacity for development is their greatest problem, they are asking the City to set aside a portion of its HOME ($90,000) and IHF funds ($110,000) to create a fund to which they can apply for administrative and training resources. They also ask that the City continue to support their work through community policing, strong housing code enforcement, infrastructure improvements and planning/technical support in their inner city neighborhoods.
4 The need for the City to increase its emphasis on support services aimed at self-sufficiency in order to move people up and out of public housing, thereby freeing up public housing units and creating a pipeline of families ready to benefit from City-funded transitional housing and homeownership programs. Estimated cost of a proposed Charlotte Housing Authority self-sufficiency program $350,000 in FY94

5 The need for a program emphasizing counseling of tenants in privately owned rental housing on such matters as rental delinquency, budgeting, property damage, housekeeping and basic home maintenance. Family Housing Services' request to do this and mortgage default counseling for FY 94 $325,000

6 The need to continue existing programs which prepare families for homeownership, such as the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Housing Partnership (CMHP) Pre-Purchase Mortgage Counseling Program ($136,422) and the Legal Services program to remove and prevent legal obstacles to homeownership ($84,000)

During the course of these meetings it was determined that many, if not all of these requests could be accommodated within existing housing resources if all activities eligible for federal funds were funded with federal dollars, thus freeing up unrestricted local Innovative Housing dollars for those activities that could not be funded any other way. In a meeting with CMHP staff and members of its Board, it was determined that for FY94, CMHP would be willing to substitute some of its innovating Housing dollars for federal CDBG or HOME dollars, since most or all of its planned FY94 activities are eligible for federal funds. Specifically, CMHP agreed to take up to $1,000,000 in federal funds for FY94, to be used for its federally eligible activities in acquisition, rehabilitation and second mortgage finance. However, this willingness to substitute restricted federal funds for unrestricted local dollars was contingent on CMHP receiving total FY94 funding of $2,000,000, with the remaining $1,000,000 to come from the Innovative Housing Fund

Under this arrangement, the City could fund all existing and requested new programs with the possible exception of the $750,000 it would require to build one 50-unit multifamily housing project in FY94 as proposed by the private sector. Should Council decide it wants to fund such a project, this request could also be accommodated if CMHP were asked and were willing to substitute additional federal for local dollars.

CHARLOTTE HOUSING AUTHORITY
CHARLOTTE HOUSING AUTHORITY (CHA)

PURPOSE:

Statutorily, the Charlotte Housing Authority's purpose is to provide safe, sanitary, decent and affordable housing for low and very low income families earning less than 80% of the median income for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Standard Metropolitan Area. The CHA serves those Charlotte families for whom conventional housing is not affordable while working with residents to increase their ability to live independently and to compete in the economic and social mainstream.

OBJECTIVE:

The Charlotte Housing Authority owns, manages or provides rental assistance for total of 6954 housing units. This includes conventional public housing, Section 8 Certificates and Vouchers, innovative housing and Section 202 housing, tax credit developments and city-financed complexes that provide safe, decent and affordable environments in which lower income families can live and raise their children or where seniors can live independently without fear.

WHO QUALIFIES:

Assisted Housing: Families and elderly or handicapped persons earning 50% or less than the median income for the community. Preferences are given to families paying more than 50% of their income in rent, those who are involuntarily displaced and those who are living in substandard housing.

Innovative Housing: Families and elderly or handicapped person earning 60% or less than the median income.

SOURCES OF FUNDING:

- Rental payments by residents
- Subsidy from the Department of Housing and Urban Development
- Grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development
- Grants from the City of Charlotte
- Return of Payments in Lieu of Taxes

Summary: Profile of CHA Residents

The typical household in a large housing development is female headed with two children attempting to survive on a total family income of $5,602. The typical household in a scattered site public housing complex is female headed with 2.2 children surviving on a total income of $6,199. Elderly households fair somewhat better with an average income of $7,390. Families in City-financed developments are typically female headed with 2 children with an average income of $9,016 per year. As might be anticipated, families in the Stepping Stone and Innovative Housing Programs are the better off: They are female headed with 2.1 dependents and an average income of $17,197, indicating their progression toward economic and social independence.
CITY OF CHARLOTTE

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT
COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT

PURPOSE:

The City of Charlotte strives to preserve the City’s housing stock and develop new housing resources and employment opportunities for Charlotte’s low- and moderate-income residents

OBJECTIVE:

The City’s objective is to reduce the number of households living in substandard, overcrowded or unaffordable housing conditions, targeting families earning 80% or less of the area median income. The City also seeks to expand the public role in addressing housing issues in partnership with private and non-profit entities. Program strategies to achieve objective include:

1) Preservation of the existing housing stock through code enforcement and of both owner-occupied and rental housing.

2) Expansion of the housing stock and creation of affordable housing opportunities through financing for:
   - construction of low-income housing,
   - acquisition and rehabilitation of dwellings, and
   - relocation assistance, home purchase loans, and supportive services
   - low interest loans to assist low- and moderate-income families displaced by governmental action to purchase or replace homes.

3) Promotion of economic development and business expansion to strengthen neighborhoods through the creation of jobs and economic opportunities for low- to moderate-income individuals.

4) Creation of jobs and the stabilization of neighborhoods through economic development lending to small businesses.

5) Funding for support services such as:
   - Pre-purchase mortgage counseling and legal assistance for families striving to become homeowners,
   - mortgage default and post counseling,
   - rental counseling, and
   - home maintenance education.
WHO QUALIFIES:

The City addresses the housing needs of families earning less than 80% of the area median income, with priority to families earning 60% or less of the area median income residing within the City Within A City boundaries.

ACTIVITIES:

- Code Enforcement
  - Acquisition/Rehabilitation Feasibility Analysis
- Rehabilitation Financial Support and construction oversight
  - Owner-occupied
  - Investor Owners
- Housing referral
- Home maintenance education
- Job creation loans
- Strategic Planning, technical and financial assistance to non-profits and for-profit organizations
Code Enforcement

The objectives of the City's Code Enforcement program are to:

1) protect the health and safety of the residents of Charlotte,
2) preserve and maintain the housing stock,
3) minimize displacement resulting from code enforcement,
4) ensure prompt correction of major or unsafe violation(s), and
5) prevent the re-occupancy of unsafe dwellings, within the City of Charlotte targeting the 23 census tracts in a 1990 University of North Carolina at Charlotte study as having the highest concentration of deteriorated housing units.

The acquisition and disposition analysis program is an extension of the code enforcement process that attempts to identify residential structures under code enforcement that can be acquired and rehabilitated for low-income housing.

Owner-occupied Rehabilitation

Under the Selective Rehabilitation program, the City provides low-interest rehabilitation loans to homeowners earning 80% or less of the area median income with code violations in an effort to preserve the housing stock and improve living conditions with priority given to those homeowners in the targeted 23 census tracts. The primary objectives of the program are to assist low-income homeowners in:

- correcting violations of the City's Housing Code;
- weatherize homes; and
- upfitting housing for handicapped persons.

The Selective Rehabilitation program has two types of loans available to low-income homeowners the 1) payment and 2) deferred payment loans. Payment loans interest rates range from 0 - 3% with a maximum of 30 years to pay off the loan and requires monthly payments by the homeowner. The deferred payment loan does not require a monthly payment, but is due in full when the house is sold or the loan recipient(s) move, die, the property is rented, refinanced or when the loan matures.

As a part of the conditions for assistance in the Selective Rehabilitation program, loan recipients are required to attend the newly developed Charlotte Home Maintenance Program to learn how to perform minor/preventive home maintenance tasks to protect and extend the life of their rehabilitated home.
Investor-Owners

The Investor-owner program provides loans to owners of rental property utilized by low-income tenants to rehabilitate housing units and bring the units up to the City’s housing code standards. The objectives of this program is to:

- rehabilitate rental units for occupancy by low and very low-income families,
- revitalize neighborhoods and minimize displacement, and
- facilitate compliance of housing units with the City’s minimum housing code.

Housing Referral

The Housing Referral program assists individuals who have been displaced from their home due to code enforcement, capital improvement projects, fire damage or because they need modifications to their housing unit due to disability, through:

- financial support to cover the family’s moving expenses;
- identification of alternative housing that is decent and affordable;
- home purchase or rental assistance where appropriate; and
- counseling to assist the family in achieving self-sufficiency.

Replacement Housing

In cases where rehabilitation of an owner-occupied housing unit under code enforcement is not cost-effective, the families may be eligible for replacement housing. This is when homes are demolished and replaced either with an existing home moved onto the site and rehabilitated, or a new home constructed on the vacant lot.

Multifamily Housing Development

The Innovative Housing Fund program was created to expand the supply of affordable housing. The funds for the Innovative Housing Program come from the General Fund Pay-As-You-Go Sales Tax. The primary objectives of the program under Council-approved policy guidelines are:

1) to ensure an expanding supply of affordable rental housing for low income households,

2) to contribute to neighborhood revitalization through in-fill housing development and adaptive reuse of properties not currently in the housing stock; and

3) to stimulate public/private partnerships for the development of affordable housing

In recent years, a substantial portion of Innovative Housing Fund resources have been devoted to code enforcement and housing support services.
Job Creation Loans

The City's job creation loan programs provide gap financing to new or expanding businesses to promote economic development within targeted areas (primarily the City Within A City area). The borrowers must create employment opportunities for low- and moderate-income residents, leading to the stabilization of neighborhoods and the expansion of the local tax base.

There are three programs which lend to small businesses:

- Development and Revitalization Fund (DARF),
- Economic Development Revolving Loan Fund (EDRLF) and
- City Within A City Equity Loan.

Financial and technical assistance for non-profits and for-profits

The City of Charlotte provides financial support to various non-profit/neighborhood based organizations that provide housing support services to low income residents. Along with the financial support, city staff provides technical assistance to the non-profit/neighborhood based organizations to enable low income residents to achieve self-sufficiency. In addition, gap financing loans are made to for-profit organizations through public/private partnership arrangements to create affordable housing opportunities for low-income families on a case-by-case basis.
NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS
CHARLOTTE-MECKLENBURG HOUSING PARTNERSHIP

PURPOSE:

Charlotte-Mecklenburg Housing Partnership, Inc. (Partnership) was established "to expand affordable and well-maintained housing for low and moderate income families in Mecklenburg County". The Partnership provides housing in a variety of ways. One way is the production of affordable multifamily housing by providing loans for such developments as well as serving as the developer. The Partnership also acquires and renovates existing single family units for resale. Homeownership is an important component not only in providing affordable housing and but in revitalizing the City Within A City neighborhoods. Also, the Partnership constructs some new homes primarily in City Within A City area. Single family units are produced as a part of neighborhood strategy in areas such as Seversville, Greenville and Genesis Park. Single family units in other areas of the City of Charlotte are selected based on their cost and marketability on a scattered site basis.

OBJECTIVE:

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg Housing Partnership was established to create homeownership opportunities for low-income families. It operates a $17.5 million revolving loan pool contributed by local banks to provide low-cost home mortgages to low-income families.

WHO QUALIFIES:

Families earning 80% or less of the median income living in the City Within A City area.
Families earning 60% or less of the median income living outside the City Within A City area.

ACTIVITIES:

- Acquisition and rehabilitation of single family units to be sold
- Development of single family homes and multifamily rental housing
- Mortgage financing for single family housing
- Self-sufficiency counseling
- Pre-purchase mortgage counseling
- Production of housing opportunities in City Within A City area

The Partnership utilizes a $17.5 million bank loan consortium, federal tax credits, and NC Housing Finance Finance Agency funds in its efforts to make housing more affordable and to further leverage city dollars.

Pre-purchase mortgage counseling provides assistance to low and moderate income families in resolving credit problems that are barriers to the families opportunity to become a homeowner.

The homeownership opportunities are created through the Partnership's acquisition and rehabilitation or newly constructed single family units that are sold to the families that it assists.
HABITAT FOR HUMANITY CHARLOTTE

PURPOSE:

Habitat for Humanity Charlotte develops housing for low and very low income families using volunteer labor and donated materials to lower costs.

OBJECTIVE:

Habitat makes 0% interest mortgage loans and requires homeowners to contribute sweat equity by working on their own and others' homes, putting home ownership within reach of persons with an income as low as 12,000 per year.

WHO QUALIFIES:

Low-income working family average approximately 12,000 per year and willing to work on their home and other Habitat participants homes.

SOURCES OF FUNDING:

- City of Charlotte
- Private Contributions
  - Financial
  - Volunteer labor and supplies
- Recycled mortgage payments

ACTIVITIES:

- Acquisition and Rehabilitation of single family homes to be sold
- Construction of single family homes
- Mortgage lending
- Parenting, education, homeownership training classes
Habitat for Humanity target areas for homeownership opportunities for low income families are Belmont and Optimist Park with the targeted areas expanding to include Northwest Charlotte.

The acquisition and rehabilitation and construction of single family homes to be sold to low income families is an opportunity to preserve the existing housing by making families homeowners. This effort not only preserves the existing housing, it revitalizes and stabilizes the neighborhood. Also, the mortgage lending provided by Habitat to its clients makes the purchase of home a reality with 0% interest mortgage loans.

The parenting, education, homeownership training classes provide counseling sessions, motivation and information to assist the family in achieving self-sufficiency. The parenting counseling sessions deal with strengthening the family to achieve self-sufficiency. The education session provides information to parents on the educational options available to their children. The homeownership classes focus on home repairs, energy conservation and neighborhood preservation.

SUBJECT: Schedule for Central District and Area Plan Rezonings

At the June 21 dinner meeting you agreed to hold three special public hearings to implement the rezoning recommendations in the Central District Plan and four area plans (Cherry, Villa Heights, Reid Park and Wilmore). Staff was instructed to work with the manager's office to schedule the meetings.

Attached is a recommended schedule of meetings for the rezonings. After combining many of the areas, there are a total of 56 cases. To accommodate these number of cases and complete the project in a timely manner, staff requests that Council adopt the attached schedule.

Housing Policy Plan

Approved by City Council
April 6, 1987

Revised

City of Charlotte

Adopted April 6, 1987
Revised May 22, 1989
Revised September 11, 1989

I. MISSION

The City of Charlotte is committed to reducing the number of City households living in substandard, overcrowded or unaffordable housing conditions. The expenditure of public dollars will address the housing needs of residents earning less than 80% of median income, with priority to families earning 60% or less, through an aggressive preservation program emphasizing code enforcement and rehabilitation, through partnership efforts to stimulate production of housing for low-income residents, and through coordinated assistance efforts to reduce the number of people needing subsidized housing.

The City is further committed to expanding the public role in housing to include:

- Leadership in a community-wide coalition for low income housing needs, and;

- Partnership with public and nonprofit agencies to address low-income housing needs with an holistic approach.

A. TARGET POPULATION: The following policy statement defines the target population to be served:

When City dollars are used to subsidize housing, the people receiving the subsidy must reside in substandard, over-crowded, or unaffordable housing; must earn 80% or less of the local median income with priority to families earning 60% or less; and must be on the Master List for subsidized housing administered and maintained by the Housing Authority, or must currently reside in public housing units. Priority will be given to stabilizing the housing conditions for families with children below the age of 15, and to efforts promoting self-sufficiency for these families.

B. RECYCLING OF FUNDS: All proceeds from the sale of real estate owned by the City and managed by the Community Development Department shall be appropriated to the Innovative Housing Fund to purchase land for future development of assisted housing for persons earning 40% or less of median income.
C. Action Step: The City has developed in cooperation with the Charlotte Housing Authority a proposal for administering and maintaining a clearing house and master list for people needing subsidized housing who meet the criteria of income and who currently live in substandard, or over-crowded, or unaffordable housing.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Funding: In the late 70's, the City of Charlotte became directly involved in funding the production of low-income housing units as a result of, and as a response to, the City's earlier role in demolishing housing for urban renewal. In 1980, the City made a three-year commitment of $1.5 million annually in General Revenue Sharing (GRS) dollars for housing related activities. In 1983, the City made a five-year commitment for funding 150 units of low-income housing using GRS.

In 1986, with the elimination of GRS by the federal government, City Council approved a five-cent tax levy to replace GRS including the GRS dollars for housing.

The City's continuing role in housing in the 80's became increasingly important as the federal government withdrew from funding for public housing and eliminated subsidies for low-income housing construction.

B. City Council Efforts: In November, 1986, the City sponsored a community symposium on "the housing gap", to stimulate problem-solving discussion on how to provide low-income housing. As follow-up, City Council held a workshop in February, 1987, to discuss the City's role in housing and goals for use of City resources. This plan sets forth the goals and strategies which are the result of the symposium, City Council workshops, and retreats.

III. ROLE DEFINITIONS

A. City of Charlotte

1. Preserve and protect existing housing stock through direct services delivery program (Code enforcement, rehabilitation loans).

2. Financing subsidized housing through:
C. Production: Total units produced annually through action by the City or in partnership is estimated to be:

- Rehabilitation: 319/year
- New/Replacement: 100/year
- Total: 419/year

Units Brought Into Code Compliance: 3,600/year (beginning 1989)

The relationship between the production estimates and needs in specified in the following sections.
GOALS AND STRATEGIES

V. PRESERVATION

A. Code Enforcement/Rehabilitation

A-1. Need: 6,800 structures, or 5% of the housing in the City, are substandard (based on a 1987 UNCC survey).

A-2. Goal: To reduce the number of substandard structures from 5% of the total housing stock to less than 1% by 1997.

A-3. Strategies:

A-3(a). Increase code compliances by 600 units in FY88 and by 1,200 units in FY89, for a total of 3,600 units/year. Concentrate increased inspections in targeted areas (21 census tracts).

Cost: $1.2 million (Local)

A-3(b). Fund 185 owner rehabilitations and 40 rental rehabilitations per year.

Units: 225/year
Cost: $2.5 million (CDBG & Rental Rehab)

A-3(c). Changes to the City Housing Code have been implemented which strengthen preservation efforts, and provide disincentives to property owners who are not complying with the Housing Code. The changes were approved by City Council during 1987 and implemented January 4, 1988 included: 1) Civil Penalties; 2) Quicker action on unsafe buildings; 3) Insulation requirement.

A legislative proposal to allow liens for relocation costs was not accepted by the Mecklenburg Delegation. In FY87 a broader interpretation of the definition of "dwelling" no longer allows an owner to circumvent code enforcement action by taking it off the housing market by boarding it up. In FY89 the State Legislature approved a local bill to allow Charlotte to condemn boarded-up or vacant substandard housing units (spot condemnation) through the code enforcement process.

A-3(d). Fund 32 in-rem repair cases per year:

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Cost:</td>
<td>$100,000 (Local)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

B. Boarded-Up Structures

B-1. Need: 350 structures containing 430 dwelling units are boarded-up in the City.

B-2. Goal: To reduce the number of boarded-up structures by 30 per year emphasizing rehabilitation and return to the housing inventory.

B-3. Strategies:

B-3(a). Develop/continue partnerships with nonprofit agencies to acquire and rehabilitate boarded-up units.

C. Total Preservation Program

1. Units Rehabilitated/Year: 319
2. Cost/Year: $3.2 - $3.6 million
3. Units Brought Into Compliance/Year: 3,600
4. Cost of Code Enforcement/Year: $1.2 million

VI. New Construction

$2.5 million/year available for leveraging strategies.
Production of 100 units/year.

A-1. Need: Approximately 95 housing units are lost annually through enforcement of the housing code.

Note: 196 units were demolished in FY88 and 156 units were demolished in FY89.

A-2. Goal: Provide 95-100 replacement housing units for sale or rental to families earning less than 80% of median income.

A-3. Strategies:

The following are examples of approaches to be used to leverage dollars for new construction. Actual strategies will depend on the partnership developed with private developers and nonprofit agencies.

A-3(b). Habitat for Humanity.

A-3(c). In-fill Modular Housing.

A-3(d). Second Mortgage Subsidy.

B. Low-Income Rental Housing

B-1. Need: 3,900 families are on the Housing Authority’s Waiting list; 33,905 families earn less than 50% of median income.

B-2. Goal: To expand rental housing opportunities for low-income families; to provide opportunities for families in public housing to move into private market housing.
B-3. Strategies:

The following are examples of approaches to be used to leverage dollars for additional low-income housing.

B-3(a). Stepping Stone: $400,000 for 2 years

B-3(b). Local subsidy/rental payments.

B-3(c). Partnership with developers using federal tax credits 80/20 program.

VII. EXPANDED CITY ROLE

During 1987 City Council reviewed and approved strategies to achieve the goal of an expanded City role in housing.

A. Goal: Provide leadership for a community-wide coalition to address low-income housing needs.

B. Goal: Develop a partnership of public and private agencies to address housing needs of low-income residents in an holistic approach.

Housing Workshop
Minutes Book 102, Page 343

The City Council of the City of Charlotte, North Carolina met for a Housing Workshop on July 12, 1993 at 5:00 p.m. in Room 267 of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Government Center. Mayor Richard Vinroot presided until 6:10 p.m. whereupon Mayor Pro Tem Ann Hammond presided. Councilmembers in attendance were Dan Clodfelter, Pat McCrory, Nasif Majeed, Tom Mangum, Hoyle Martin, Cyndee Patterson, and Don Reid. Ella Scarborough arrived at 7:30 p.m.

ABSENT: Councilmembers Stan Campbell and Lynn Wheeler

Mayor Richard Vinroot called the meeting to order at 5:15 p.m. and welcomed those in attendance.

PART I. HOUSING POLICIES AND PRIORITIES

Jay Walton and Lynne Jones, Community Development Department, presented a slide show on the evolution of housing policies in Charlotte from the early '50s until the present.

PART II. PERSPECTIVES OF HOUSING PARTNERS ON HOUSING PRIORITIES

A. Private Sector:

Tony Pressley, Chairman of the Property Manager's Coalition, presented a report from the group which contained fourteen specific recommendations on how to deal with Charlotte's affordable rental housing stock including giving higher priority to the preservation of existing low income rental housing stock, initiating a local property based rent subsidy program, establishing a housing court to require mediation in landlord/tenant disputes, providing City repair loans or grants and counseling to tenants in cases of tenant abuse, encouraging partnerships among the City, private property owners, managers and residents to foster neighborhood self-sufficiency and pride, implementing a team approach to community development staffing in the CWAC area utilizing community police, social workers and neighborhood development specialists to help empower neighborhoods, encouraging local financial institutions to provide a pool of affordable financing for existing property, expanding programs which train and counsel tenants in home maintenance and repair, budget management, tenant responsibilities and consumer issues, working with local utilities, Social Services, Crisis Assistance and other agencies to increase resources available to low income families for energy assistance, seeking legislation for a state tax credit program to provide an incentive for owners to rent to very low income households, lobbying for the reinstatement of federal tax shelter incentives for low income real estate investments, providing assistance to property managers in preventing the 40,000 evictions filed annually, perhaps utilizing Family Housing Services, requiring the Tax Office to use a true income approach for establishing rental property values, and controlling the criminal element in CWAC neighborhoods to make these neighborhood safe and desirable for good tenants.

Jane Burts, Charlotte Organizing Project, read a letter to Council outlining housing issues from their perspective. They praised the efforts of Community Development in enforcing the housing code more strictly and said they hope for continued housing funding for the city within a city area as their work is focused on low income neighborhoods.

Judd Little, Crosland Properties, spoke about new construction of housing, and said it may be more cost-efficient than it appears when viewed for the lifetime of the project. He described the projects at Fairmarket Square, McMullen Woods and Summerfield.
B. Public Housing:

Harrison Shannon, Charlotte Housing Authority spoke about the changing trend in housing toward helping tenants to move up and out rather than spending a lifetime in public housing. He presented a family self-sufficiency plan for Council’s consideration.

Carol Hoeffner, Chair, Housing Authority described the composition of families in public housing.

C. Self Sufficiency:

Ted Fillote, Legal Services of Southern Piedmont discussed the three housing needs and strategies to go with them that he feels the community needs at this point. They are to reinforce the neighborhood viability programs, coordinate the continuum of housing opportunities and services for upward mobility and to reserve $750,000 as a catalyst for at least one scattered site apartment complex. He feels community policing is an integral part of successful public housing.

Gwen Boynton Roberts, Family Housing Services described some of the families who live in public housing and stressed the importance of counseling, budgeting and money management for these families to promote self-sufficiency.

D. Nonprofit-Sponsored Housing

Kathryn Heath, Chair, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Housing Partnership said she is intrigued by the relationship of human development to public housing. She stated that the focus of the partnership is neighborhoods. Their goal is to have home ownership and rental in every neighborhood, but the community must be involved in these decisions so they will feel ownership. She urged Council to continue scattered site housing, and to consider renovation of the 309 units which will be discussed later.

E. Community Based Organizations

Bert Greene, Habitat for Humanity offered several policy directions for Council’s consideration. He applauded the City’s efforts at intervention, but said the battle is just beginning. Community Based Organizations (CBO’S) are going to be instrumental in carrying out solutions to the inner-city problems. CBO’S are seeking to stabilize and secure their core funding for operations and would request that Council consider funding on a matching basis, and also offer them the opportunity to renovate nuisance properties.

PART III. FY 94 HOUSING PROGRAM ACTIVITIES AND FUNDING LEVELS
July 12, 1993
Housing Workshop
Minutes Book 102, Page 345

Mr. Walton discussed funding levels for this year and explained the chart on page five of the agenda to City Councilmembers.

PART IV. REPORT FROM COMMITTEE CHAIR

Councilmember Cyndee Patterson, Housing Committee Chair, reported for the Committee, and said they had spent a lot of time on individual pieces of the strategy now before Council. One of the most important cornerstones in reducing crime in the CWAC area is suitable housing, and this has always been a commitment of City Council. Ms. Patterson invited Council to ask questions about the housing policy and the handout they were given. She asked them to think about whether they should consider spending rehab dollars a different way, since most of it is now spent on rental units.

Councilmember Nasif Majeed said he felt if Council subsidizes the apartment industry, it is defeating the goal of self sufficiency, because there is no pride of ownership.

Ms. Hammond agreed if Council spends more in rental rehab, there needs to be a clear understanding of the responsibility of landlord and tenant so that self sufficiency goals are not cut.

Councilmember Dan Clodfelter agreed there needs to be some rethinking about the dollars that go into rehab. That comes from two observations: Tony Pressley's report and also housing preservation strategy has focused on code enforcement and selected rehab loans. He does not feel we are getting the most out of our dollars in selected rehab loans because they are not targeted to where the need is the greatest. The tenant and landlord need to have a joint responsibility and understanding on the need to maintain the unit. The second issue shows in the 309 units. Those 309 units have enormous deferred maintenance costs. What about the other 4,000 units that need maintenance? Where will that money come from? The deferred maintenance issue is a time bomb ticking away that is going to explode just like the transit deficit has exploded.

Ms. Patterson agrees with Mr. Clodfelter, it needs to be rehashed and thought about in a new way. Also, the rehab dollars are repaid at some point either by the property owner like a second mortgage, or when the property changes hands. Also, there are some people who don't maintain their property appropriately, but over the last fifteen years, several things have changed. One, the kind of tenant has changed and their knowledge level on how to maintain a property has changed substantially. Secondly, because of the change in the tax laws, it has become almost a disincentive to own this property, given that the repairs are far larger than you would normally expect.

Councilmember Tom Mangum said everyone in the overall community is suffering right now because of inflation, etc. We're all suffering five percent less income. He was discouraged to read that some areas in town have gone downhill so badly that no one wants to live there any more. Isn't community policing trying to save those neighborhoods and keep people there? Yet our own housing authorities are ready to give up. We're self-defeating ourselves by putting police in there and moving housing out. He thinks we need to try to rehab those areas and go to war with the drug dealers who are there. Somehow there must be a way to penalize a tenant who damages property.

Ms. Hammond said she is hearing a lot of agreement from Council about rethinking the way this is done.
Mr McCrory said the intent of public housing should be to get the residents out, it was never designed to be permanent homesites. The rents should increase yearly as we provide job counseling.

Mr Shannon said there is no rental cap, but they are required by federal regulations to charge residents 30% of their income. If their incomes increase, their rents increase. Rent reform and how to handle it is being discussed in the public housing arena.

Ms Hammond said Council had really only begun in the last few years to look at the up and out theory, the holistic approach to public housing, and really only have funding to do a little bit of that when most of us would like to do more. It's taken awhile to get in this condition, and will take awhile to get out, but we seem to have a strong point of agreement in emphasizing those kinds of support services that will encourage people to move up and out.

Mr Reid said if we have 8,000 families on the waiting list and hundreds of available, unfilled units, and we can't figure out how to fill those, we're focusing on the wrong thing. Self-sufficiency is not dependent on owning a house. Thousands of people are in rental units and are very self-sufficient. Why not use the available housing we have now? The second thing is, why shouldn't those 8,000 do a little work every week to get a house, as Habitat requires? Also, since crime is a big problem in public housing, the emphasis should be to declare war on crime.

Mr Clodfelter asked for information from the Housing Authority as to what percentage of the current population is 50 years old or certified as medically disabled. A lot of people for different reasons, age could be one of them, would not be able to move up and out. The move up and out strategy in the prison system works only on the margin.

Ms Hammond said it appears from the conversation that rehab is at the top of the list.

Mr Clodfelter said he would summarize what he has heard about the preservation strategy. The current preservation strategy is to beat landlords with a housing code stick and we encourage homeowners with rehab loans. We need to give incentives to landlords and sticks and carrots to the tenant, and focus on the tenant's role in housing preservation. It needs to be aggressive on the acquisition and disposition in the CWAC area. It needs to recognize that preservation strategy means maintenance on the existing inventory of publicly owned and assisted units. That's the preservation strategy that needs emphasis in the next few years.

Ms Hammond asked Mr Clodfelter if he wanted to make a motion for to be the preservation strategy for Council to adopt.

Mr Reid asked Mr Clodfelter to repeat the first point.

Mr Clodfelter said he would have to do it in relation to the current situation. What he hears people saying about the current situation is that the whole burden is on the landlord and it's a stick that we beat them with, the code enforcement stick. We need to provide assistance to the landlord. Also, we have to find a workable strategy to focus on the tenant's role in maintenance and preservation, a way to involve them in the responsibility and rewards and obligations of maintenance.

Ms Hammond said she would really like a way to involve sweat equity.

Mr Clodfelter agreed and said he would not tell them how to design it.

Ms Patterson said one of the things the coalition suggested that the current code enforcement inspectors have a retraining of what they do that has a tenant focus to it.
Mr. Clodfelter said a proposal on tenant responsibility was brought to Council last year and was voted down because there were a lot of problems in making it workable. There still are, that's why I can't tell these people tonight how to do it. The third piece is the A & D, and the last is maintenance on what we have.

Ms. Patterson said also under housing preservation, she would like to encourage Council to provide support to community-based organizations. Even though they are relatively new to Charlotte, they are very successful in other places in the country. We know ownership inside a neighborhood works.

Motion by Councilmember Clodfelter, seconded by Councilmember Martin, carried unanimously, to approve the housing preservation strategy and provide incentives to landlords, focus on the tenant's role in maintenance and preservation, involve sweat equity, acquisition and disposition in the City Within A City area, and maintain existing housing stock.

Ms. Hammond asked staff to come back with a recommendation on self-sufficiency job training, tenant counseling, education, targeting those who can benefit from support services, building community-based organizations.

Motion by Councilmember Scarborough, seconded by Councilmember Mangum, and carried unanimously, to adopt the self-sufficiency policy and to include a proposed plan to approach businesses for their help in a mentoring program.

Motion by Councilmember Patterson, seconded by Councilmember Scarborough, carried unanimously, to continue allocating project dollars in support of community-based initiatives of acquisition and rehabilitation in the urban core, work with community-based organizations and strengthen their capacity, approve the $200,000 competitive grant fund for operating support and training to eligible CD corporations and link housing preservation to community policing and public safety programs such as SNAP, and make assisted housing more secure.

Ms. Hammond asked to clarify this approach. She said her impression was that Council wanted to take some of the dollars they had to reprogram and go a bit beyond what we are doing with SNAP now, and it's not just in public housing communities, it is in CWAC neighborhoods where we have community policing and might be looking for a storefront police station or anything like that.

Council agreed that is right. It will come back to them with dollars attached.

Motion by Councilmember Patterson, seconded by Councilmember Scarborough, to approve the community building strategy, and carried unanimously.

Motion by Councilmember McCrory, seconded by Councilmember Reid, to go to a tenant-based rental subsidy geographically targeted to the CWAC area and ask HUD to waive their restrictions so that HOME Funds may be used.

Substitute motion by Councilmember Scarborough, seconded by Councilmember Mangum, to approve the rental subsidy program tenant based and use federal funds.
Vote on the Substitute Motion:

YEAS: Reid, Mangum, Scarborough, Majeed

NAYS: McCrory, Hammond, Clodfelter, Patterson

Vote on Main Motion:

YEAS: Reid, McCrory, Hammond, Clodfelter, Patterson

NAYS: Majeed, Scarborough, Mangum

Ms Hammond said this would be brought back to full Council for discussion after Council hears HUD's decision is known.

[ Motion by Councilmember Scarborough, seconded by Councilmember Patterson, to continue ] [ to support scattered site housing ]

[ Motion by Councilmember Scarborough, seconded by Councilmember Patterson to set aside ]
[ $750,000 for one 50-unit multifamily project to be awarded on a competitive basis ]

Ms Hammond suggested that Council look at the last part of the agenda, the 309 public housing units that need maintenance, before voting on the $750,000 expenditure because the funds may not be there after the 309 are rehabilitated.

Mr Walton showed some slides and answered questions about the inventory of assisted housing units.

[ Motion by Councilmember Patterson, seconded by Councilmember Clodfelter, to continue ]
[ the housing discussion at the August workshop Carried unanimously ]

[ Motion by Councilmember Patterson, seconded by Councilmember Clodfelter, to adjourn ]
[ at 9:25 p.m. Carried unanimously ]

I am Tony Pressley, President of MECA Properties, Inc. and Chairman of the Property Manager’s Coalition.

The Property Manager’s Coalition was formed in the spring of 1992 to address matters of common interest to the Charlotte Association of Realtors, Charlotte Apartment Association and the Institute of Real Estate Management. An adequate supply of affordable, safe housing in this community, and a desire for our industry to have a voice in community policy for such, was one of the main reasons the Property Manager’s Coalition was formed, thus, we appreciate the opportunity to be at this evenings Housing Workshop.

In April of this year, after many months of work, our organization released a comprehensive report titled "Preserving Charlotte’s Affordable Rental Housing Stock: A Challenge to the City." This report was briefly presented to City Council on April 12 during the Public Forum portion of the Council Meeting.

Our report dealt in great detail with the "economic gap" that exists between what it cost the private sector to deliver in today’s market a standard fit unit properly maintained, and what low income citizens in our community can afford to pay. There were also 14 specific recommendations which were as follows:

1. Amend the Charlotte’s Housing Mission Statement to give higher priority to the preservation of existing low income rental housing stock.
2. Initiate a local property based rent subsidy program.
3. Establish a housing court with the authority to require enforcement of mediation in landlord/tenant disputes.
4. Provide City repair loans or grants and counseling to tenants in cases of tenant abuse.
5. Encourage partnerships among the City, private property owners, managers and residents to foster neighborhood self-sufficiency and pride.
6. Implement a team approach to community development staffing in the City Within A City area utilizing community police, social workers and neighborhood development specialists to help empower neighborhoods.

7. Encourage local financial institutions to provide a pool of affordable financing for existing property.

8. Expand programs which train and counsel tenants in home maintenance and repair, budget management, tenant responsibilities and consumer issues.

9. Work with local utilities, Department of Social Services, Crisis Assistance Ministry and other agencies to increase resources available to low income families for energy assistance.

10. Seek legislation for a state tax credit program to provide an incentive for owners to rent to very low income households.

11. Lobby for the reinstatement of federal tax shelter incentives for low income real estate investments.

12. Provide assistance to property managers in preventing the 40,000 evictions filed annually, perhaps utilizing Family Housing Services.

13. Require Tax Assessor’s Office to use a true "income approach" for establishing rental property values.

14. Control the criminal element in the City Within A City neighborhoods to make these neighborhoods safe and desirable for good tenants.

* On Monday, May 3, at the Charlotte City Council Housing Subcommittee Meeting, the city staff presented a proposed criteria for allocation of the City’s housing resources, and the Property Manager’s Coalition was very pleased to see that many of it’s recommendations from it’s April 1993 report were incorporated into staffs recommendations. We were also pleased to be asked by some council members on the Housing Subcommittee to respond to the proposed criteria, and on June 2 our organization did just that.

* I’d like to take the final time allowed to emphasize six (6) "must" priorities from our perspective that should be incorporated into any new housing policy statement for Charlotte and that should be taken into consideration prior to allocation of the city’s future housing resources. These are as follows:
1. Amend the City’s present housing mission statement to give higher priority to preserving our existing rental housing stock, and stabilizing the inner-city neighborhoods where much of this housing is located. We believe the City’s present mission statement gives too much emphasis to reducing substandard housing through code enforcement.

2. With the transfer of Section 8 inspections to the Charlotte Housing Authority, we recommend that a job description for City Housing Inspectors be re-written in such a way to enable the inspection staff to cite tenants for abuse and neglect and identify resources which can help tenants with housekeeping skills and family problems.

3. We strongly recommend a property based rent subsidy in an effort to "homestead" at risk neighborhoods in transition and under the influence of drug related crimes.

4. We recommend that community based development organizations, such as Reid Park, continue to be established and nurtured, and support allocating funds to meet the operating and training needs of such organizations.

5. We ask that resources available be expanded for case management and counseling in training to low income renters, especially those identified as high risk.

6. Lastly, we ask that all-out war be declared on the low income neighborhood crime. Unless neighborhoods in the City Within A City area can be made safe from drugs and violence, it will become increasingly difficult to preserve the housing stock, more and more units will be vacated and boarded up, we will lose valuable low income housing and resources, and risk abandoning these areas to drug pushers and users, prostitutes and criminals.

* Thank you for the opportunity to come before you on behalf of the Property Manager’s Coalition with these recommendations. As we have clearly demonstrated over the years, members of our various organizations are most willing to give of their time, energy and other resources to help preserve Charlotte’s affordable rental housing stock, and look forward to working with you and staff to accomplish such.

* Thank you.

City Council Members

Charlotte, NC 28202

Dear Mayor Vinroot

The board of Charlotte Organizing Project would like to give you our comments on some of today's housing issues as we see them.

1) Code enforcement. We appreciate the recent efforts of the Community Development Department to enforce the housing code more strictly. It is very helpful in deteriorating neighborhoods to have laws with more teeth, as we do now, to make sure landlords can be held accountable. Please do not make the code less strict. As it is, many landlords cleverly get away with keeping rental property in a state of perpetual deterioration. We ask you to find a way to speed up the process which declares a landlord uncooperative, and focus on those with major violations instead of those who only have smaller problems like broken screens, etc. We still find houses with no heat, leaky roofs, and holes in the floor -- these are the ones that need priority code enforcement.

2) Housing funding for the city within a city. As you know, CHOP focuses its work on low-income neighborhoods. We are presently putting extra effort into Earle Village. We want to see funding continued for the improvement of housing in the inner city through whatever programs you manage. Although we have no objection to scattered site housing, all of us still must face the deterioration of the inner city. Scattered sites receive some automatic benefits by being located adjacent to properties that are well kept up and which receive city services such as garbage pickup and landscape improvement that often are carried out less well in low-income neighborhoods. The Belmont Task Force continues to be an example of what concentration of city services can do for a neighborhood.

Sincerely,

Katrin Gomillion, President

RE: HOUSING POLICIES FOR CITY OF CHARLOTTE

The long and difficult deliberations over the fate of the 309 units of city-financed, multi-family housing have pointed to the need for a broader review of the city's housing policies. The council workshop scheduled for July 12, 1993, will be an opportunity to re-examine the city's current policies and needs.

The housing needs in the community are far greater than are generally recognized. Any serious efforts at addressing the needs strategically will require planning that cannot be accomplished in a single workshop. Nevertheless, the city may make considerable progress in developing new housing policies at this workshop, but we should not expect a final product.

The purpose of this memo is to discuss briefly the housing needs and three major strategies that make sense with the types of resources that our community has. This discussion will address some of the immediate, short-term decisions presented to the council by the staff regarding budget and the role of city-financed units. But, it will also suggest some policies that need longer term development.

The three major strategies are elaborations on existing policies but require better coordination of efforts from public and private resources. The strategies are referred to as:

1. Comprehensive neighborhood viability programs;

2. Coordinated continuum of housing opportunities and services (for upward mobility); and

3. Scattered-site housing.

These strategies are suggested--if not required--by our community history, limited resources, and needs.
I. The Community's Needs

The city and county governments have repeatedly studied and reported the housing needs in Charlotte-Mecklenburg. The numbers have become faceless and numbing to the senses. The estimates generally show 16,000+ household in "need," expressed as totally homeless, living in deteriorated private housing, living in overcrowded conditions, and having to pay more for rent and utilities than the families can afford.

A. THE HIDDEN HOMELESS

Within this collection of statistical need, however, there is a core group of virtually homeless--but not literally homeless--people who are not being served. They are mostly women and children. I estimate that there are 8000 of these families in Mecklenburg County. They live in private, nonsubsidized housing. Their typical makeup is two children with a mother who is unemployed or works part-time without subsidized child care.

These people are virtually homeless because there is no private housing within their financial means. Since most have only AFDC for income, the typical monthly allowance of $272 (for mother and two children) keeps them totally outside of the private rental market. That is, since the minimum private rent in Charlotte for a two-bedroom unit is approximately $225, landlords know that tenants with $272 cannot afford their rent along with utilities, clothes, medicine, and other necessities.

Where are these 8000 families now? Most are staying in someone else's living room without the knowledge or permission of the host's landlord. The statistics reflect this problem, if at all, as "overcrowding." But most "host" heads of household know not to disclose the presence of the second family. Disclosure may lead to eviction of them all.

This arrangement compounds the problems for the host and "guest" families. If the host family lives in conventional public housing or private Section 8 housing, the host can be charged with fraud and evicted for having the "unauthorized occupants." The "guest family" often has been on the waiting list for public housing or Section 8 for years. If the "guest family" fails to keep the housing authority informed of its current address, the family will be purged from the waiting list. How can the "guest family" stay on the waiting list (the only likely avenue to a home of its own) without disclosing the host's address and jeopardizing eviction of them all? It cannot.
What does the host family--whether in public or private housing--do about reporting repair needs? If the landlord's maintenance staff sees the guest family and reports it to the landlord, they may all be evicted. Is it better not to report the inoperable furnace and hope the pipes do not freeze?

This whole situation of secret overcrowding is debilitating for the families and the landlords. It breeds fear and distrust in relationships. It increases the risks of neglect or abuse of the landlord's property.

When the host families grow weary of the guests or fear discovery by the landlord, the guest family may be forced to leave precipitously. Thus, the guest family is always physically and mentally insecure. When the guest family has to find another host, it may be short-lived. Each such move may require changing schools. This deprives the children, who are already at risk, of the continuity of teachers and care they need.

B. EMERGENCY AND TRANSMISSIONAL HOUSING NEEDS

The next major need in the community is for emergency housing for intact families with husbands or teenage sons. Presently the Salvation Army does not accept families with men or teenage boys. Of course, the George Shinn Uptown Shelter houses only men. The only institution in the whole community that accepts homeless families with men and male teenagers is Charlotte Emergency Housing (CEH). CEH, however, can house only ten (10) families at a time. CEH also limits admission to families with jobs or some other incomes that will enable them to return to private housing "soon."

The "soon" should be three or four weeks. But it often turns into three or four months because of a total lack of emergency transitional housing in the community. Thus, although these families can pay between $200 and $300 per month in rent, they lack the money for a security deposit or the credit to be accepted quickly by most private landlords. We need some true, emergency, transitional housing as an outlet for these families.

Ironically, Charlotte now has the social services component to make such emergency transitional housing work. The Family Jump Start Program was recently funded to provide case management for formerly homeless families. When such families pass through Charlotte Emergency Housing, they will also obtain subsidized child care through Child Care Resources. The missing element for a successful program is transitional housing that will be a bridge for the family's return to private rentals or into one of the longer-term transitional housing programs, such as Gateway or Steppingstone.
C. THE NEED FOR DISPERSED, RACIALLY INTEGRATED HOUSING

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg School System has set its goal to become the best racially integrated, urban school system in the country. As the population grows on the periphery of the county, the road system strains to carry commuters and school buses. The schools' growth projections call for the construction of thirty new schools in the next ten years.

The school board has established a policy of building new schools only in areas that are populated with at least 10% black families. By that standard, there are no new eligible school sites to the south and east of Southpark Mall. Yet, the greatest population growth is expected to occur in that quadrant of the county. If all of the new developments in the Southeast remain single-family and upper-income, there may be no new schools within their reach.

Charlotte's scattered site housing program is the method of providing racially integrated, affordable rental housing. By limiting the developments to fifty family units each, the projects are easily manageable and are unobtrusive to the surrounding neighborhoods. They have had high occupancy rates and remain in great demand. They have had relatively little crime problems. They have had no negative impact on the surrounding property values. These developments have been highly successfully by virtually all measures. See the recent article about the scattered sites in the July 9, 1993 issue of The Leader.

II. THE HOUSING POLICIES NEEDED: SOME THINGS OLD AND SOME THINGS NEW

A. MORE COMPREHENSIVE NEIGHBORHOOD VIABILITY PROGRAMS

Target neighborhoods of the City Within A City (CWAC) area need a combination of housing resources and key services. The neighborhoods with the Community Development Corporations (CDC's) need money for administration of their organizations. If the CDC's have the technical ability to develop housing and can qualify for HOME funds, obviously they should get the money. They may need assistance from staff at the planning commission to develop long term plans for housing, recreation, and other land uses.

In these neighborhoods there will always be some privately held rental housing. The Community Development Department will need to continue strong code enforcement so that the units do not deteriorate and undermine the community efforts.
It is probably necessary to have tenant-based rent subsidies available in these target neighborhoods. Since the City has allocated only $500,000 for rent subsidies, that would pay for only Two Hundred Eight (208) rent subsidies if the average subsidy was only $200 per month. With so few subsidies in a city this large, it makes sense to use them strategically to augment other neighborhood-based efforts. (If all tenant-based subsidies are not needed in these target neighborhoods, they should be used for transitional housing in the city-financed units, as discussed below.)

In target neighborhoods where increased home ownership and subsidized rentals are goals, neighborhood policing will be a real asset. Where such concentrated police efforts still cannot rid certain areas of drug houses and other public nuisances, civil legal actions should be pursued through the contract with Legal Services of Southern Piedmont.

Where there is no CDC capable of developing home ownership or new rental housing, the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Housing Partnership should be the vehicle. The Partnership staff should work with developing potential homeowners from within the neighborhood. Once a financial and credit analysis is done for potential customers, the partnership staff should make appropriate referrals to Legal Services to work on legal barriers to ownership. In a neighborhood, where CDCs can screen potential homebuyers, they may make similar referrals.

The long-term viability of the CWAC neighborhoods depends on the economic opportunities of its young people. We need to develop apprenticeships and part-time jobs for teenagers to give them hope, legitimate spending money, and role models. Perhaps the CWAC Committee on Employment could get major employers from the Central business district to establish such programs in each neighborhood--similar to the pairings of companies with certain public schools.

B. A COORDINATED CONTINUUM OF HOUSING OPPORTUNITIES AND SERVICES THAT BEGINS AT THE HOMELESS SHELTERS AND ENDS IN HOMEOWNERSHIP.

The needs of the hidden homeless are not being addressed by current housing policies, local or national. The Charlotte Housing Authority cannot expect any major funds for new construction of conventional public housing from HUD. The hidden homeless, meanwhile, are the community's greatest challenge.
1. Housing the Hidden Homeless Indirectly

This situation cannot be remedied substantially without increasing the supply of subsidized housing or increasing these families' incomes. Since neither of those solutions is likely on a large scale, we have to examine ways to alleviate the hardships, in part, through policy changes that assist indirectly.

One simple policy change would reduce the hardship on these families' admission to subsidized housing: the Housing Authority should eliminate the purging of the waiting lists for conventional public housing and Section 8 rent subsidies. At least that would avoid the heartbreak and frustration of families who have waited three or four years for admission -- only to be told that they were removed from consideration.

The major policy change, however, would be to provide an effective "self-sufficiency" program for current residents of public housing. A major purpose of such a program would be to enable those families to enhance their incomes and move to transitional housing or private housing. When current public housing families can move up and out, they make vacancies for the hidden homeless families on the waiting lists. The council needs to fund the Housing Authority's proposal and make sure that city departments will facilitate its success.

2. Using the City-Financed Units for Different Types of Transitional Housing

Since there is no debt service and no federal regulation of the community's 309 units of "city-financed" apartments, it is wise to use them in ways that no other units can serve. My suggestion is that three of the apartment complexes be devoted to lower-end, short-term transitional housing. Please see the memo I sent to the council committee dated February 15, 1993, attached hereto as Attachment A. The program for each of the three facilities is described in outline form in an attachment to that memo.

The staffing for the proposed emergency in-take facility would have to be a new expenditure. The staffing for the transitional housing for at-risk families could probably come from the Family Jump Start Program (see Attachment B herefor description). The staffing for the not-at-risk facility may come from whatever source of management would otherwise be needed -- whether from the Housing Authority, Housing Partnership, or other organization.
It probably makes sense for these three facilities to be at West Downs, Victoria Square, and Claremont. Those units would probably never be able to generate "break-even" rent payers anyway.

It may be necessary to use other tenant-based rent subsidies from the city's funds -- local or HOME -- to help make these units financially viable. By making these subsidies portable, it would facilitate the transition of some tenants out of the units.

The four suburban complexes -- Grove Place, Pleasant View, Brighton Place, and Shelton Knoll -- may be converted to the upward-mobility, homeownership-preparation type of transitional housing, in whole or in part. Their locations are well-suited for working people with automobiles. But, it is difficult to know now whether the Housing Authority can supply enough folks with the incomes needed and the commitment to the program to fill them all.

What we need is a comprehensive continuum of housing opportunities that begin at the homeless shelters and conventional public housing. These "first level" programs need to prepare tenants to go to the homeownership tracks of the Steppingstone-type program. Finally, we need to ensure that the Steppingstone participants are channeled to the purchase opportunities provided by the city, Housing Partnership, and Habitat for Humanity.

The community ought to have some overall coordinating function for this continuum of housing programs and services. The absence of any such coordination is a hindrance to the success of them all. Perhaps someone in the new consolidated department that subsumes Community Development could perform this function. Alternatively, the Housing Partnership could perform this role. The Partnership certainly has an interest in the quantity and quality of its potential homebuyers.

C. Scattered-Site Housing

The council should reserve $750,000 as a catalyst for at least one scattered site apartment complex. That $750,000 can draw down substantial federal tax credits that may be worth another $750,000 to $1,000,000. If Charlotte does not use the federal tax credits, another community will. Given how few federal housing dollars come to our community at all, it seems extremely short-sighted not to use all that are available.
The track record of Charlotte's scattered sites is excellent. They are always in the highest demand from the consumers. See the article about the Four Hundred (400)+ applicants swarming the McMullen Wood apartment complex for 55 units. The Charlotte Observer, June 27, 1993, p. 1C.

CONCLUSION

The three strategies suggested may seem ambitious and expensive when compared to what we are doing presently. The actual, short-term costs of putting together the additional services needed are unclear. But if these strategies will make all of the programs work together, the administrative costs must be a high priority.

Viewed from the perspective of the thousands of families languishing on the Housing Authority's waiting lists and those who have been purged, these strategies are woefully inadequate. They provide no new housing that will be directly affordable to them. The strategies hold out only the indefinite prospect that vacancies in public housing will open in the future as the "trickle up" systems begin to work. After watching what happened in Los Angeles, I am not confident that we are doing enough to avoid the fire next time.

RE: PROPOSALS FOR THE CITY FINANCED PUBLIC HOUSING UNITS

At 4:30 p.m. on Friday, February 12, I received the City staff's reports for the Committee. Thus, I did not have enough time to prepare any detailed comments in advance of your meeting. However, I have reviewed the staff's reports and the Housing Authority's detailed proposal to reach a "break even" financial result for the 309 housing units.

Both of the proposals, that of the City and the Housing Authority, go a long way for making the management of these units more efficient and more profitable. However, both plans could use a few more weeks' time for further thought and revisions for the following four reasons.

First, both plans, as presently constituted, run a substantial risk of losing badly needed resources for relocatees in the City's housing workload. Under the plans, the occupants would have to have considerably more income, and that simply does not fit with the profile of the families coming into the City's relocation workload. Presently, some families are waiting four to six weeks on the workload while not having any heat or power or water service or some combination of the above. Contemporaneously, the Housing Authority has been trying to be more selective rather than more inclusive in their admissions policy. We need to have some better strategy for dealing with the difficult relocatee families.

Second, under the proposal of the City staff to "privatize" the management of most of the units, there may be a substantial risk of undermining one of the other fundamental purposes of the units--"scattered site housing." If the managers are private and can select anyone within a high-income range, there is some risk that the opportunities for minority families will be substantially reduced. This result would run contrary to the purpose of having picked these sites in nonimpacted areas for the benefit of the school system and the community at large.

Third, the community may be missing a critical opportunity to address the most important housing need that is presently neglected: emergency transitional housing for relocatees and other... families seeking reunification. These housing complexes are unique. They are completely paid for and have no federal restrictions on their use. Therefore, they are the one housing resource for which we have the most flexibility. Please see the attached memo which includes a recently drafted proposal for use of some of these apartment complexes for a comprehensive approach to transitional emergency housing.

Fourth, and related to all of the above observations, we may be missing an opportunity to fit the plans for these units into a broader, holistic planning process. Ironically, the City staff and Housing Authority have already initiated this process and involved their own staff people and many other agencies from the city and county. We have been trying to develop a detailed plan for housing and services working together for families in all stages of a continuum. We are attempting to address child care, training, transportation, and other necessities with the housing programs of the community. Against this background, it does not make sense to separately decide how 309 units of the City's most unique housing resources should be used.

In conclusion, I urge the Council committee to redirect the staff and the Housing Authority to the negotiation table with the above considerations in mind. Perhaps these elements could be woven into a more comprehensive proposal for the committee to consider in March.

II. Program Features

A. Requirements of Families
1. Pay security deposit of one-fourth of monthly income, refundable on departure if no damage
2. No violence, no weapons, no alcohol, no disturbances
3. Cooperate in diagnostic, out-placement program

B. Diagnostic Out-placement (ten days)

Two or more counselors to diagnose each family within 48 hours for appropriate outplacements (in conjunction with C.D. staff or DSS if in priority category):

1. Basically sound (not at-risk) families to go to:
   (a) Charlotte Emergency Housing if employed or employable and good candidate to return to private rental market within sixty days.
(b) Relocatees to go to appropriate subsidized housing, old CHA transitional housing, or private unit with city subsidy.

(c) Families in reunification program (DSS) to go to appropriate subsidized housing or new intermediate units.

(d) Families with no present "at-risk" features but with barrier to CHS admission (formerly evicted by CHA, owes money to CHA, or family member with criminal record) to go to new intermediate units.

2. Identifiable at-risk families (present alcohol or drug dependency, child neglect or abuse, on probation for criminal offense, or other serious dysfunctional factor) go to new special, at-risk facility.
NEW TRANSITIONAL HOUSING FOR
AT-RISK FAMILIES
(Approximately 30 units)

A. Admission Sources

1. First priority from emergency intake facility
2. Secondary (if sufficient vacancy rate to handle anticipated emergency referrals) by direct referral from DSS

B. Tenure and resident obligations

1. Week-to-week lease (but limit of 26 weeks of renewal) with rent based on 30% of family income per conventional public housing standards
2. Security deposit of one week's rent
3. Utilities provided by facility
4. Families responsible for damage caused on purpose or through negligence
5. Each family has some contractual responsibility for upkeep of part of playground or other common facilities

C. Staffing

1. On-site housing manager (full-time) with access to central maintenance and backup assistant managers
2. Two full-time case managers with up to 15 clients each, to establish appropriate services for specialized needs at Mental Health (must have priority access because of short tenure), drug and alcohol treatments, job counseling and training, etc. Must have cooperative agreement with other agencies for priority. Case managers must help family secure alternative housing in six months.

D. Other Benefits

1. Child care subsidy that stays with family as long as in program and other features
NEW INTERMEDIATE TRANSITIONAL HOUSING
(NOT AT-RISK) FOR FAMILIES
(approximately 50 units)

A. Admission Sources

1. First priority from emergency in-take facility

2. Second priority--relocatees with the Community Development Department that were not emergencies but were not immediately placeable in subsidized housing because of CHA barrier

3. Third priority (if sufficient vacancy for anticipated emergencies) by referral from any of ten agencies that may send families to emergency facility

B. Tenure and Financial Obligations

1. Week-to-week lease with maximum renewal of 26 weeks with rent based on 30% of family income per conventional public housing standards (but no maximum rent)

2. Security deposit of one week's rent

3. Utilities provided by facility

4. Families responsible for damage caused on purpose or through negligence

5. Each family has some contractual responsibility for upkeep of part of playground or other common facilities

C. Staffing

1. Full-time manager who has case management responsibility for all resident families

2. Part-time office assistant for record-keeping, maintenance issues, rent collection, etc.

3. Families with CHA barriers to readmission referred immediately to Family Housing Services to begin rehab and negotiation process for removal of barriers

D. Other Benefits (same child care subsidy as for at-risk)

1. Child care subsidy that stays with family as long as in program and other features
Charlotte Mecklenburg Family Jump Start Program

North Carolina Commitment

The North Carolina Division of Economic Opportunity has been designated by the Governor to coordinate state level services for homeless people. In this role, the Division is responsible for providing support for local service providers and for strengthening the statewide network for services for the homeless. The Division is supported in this role by the NC Interagency Council for the Coordination of Homeless Programs which is composed of representatives of major state agencies and private organizations that serve the homeless.

As part of its responsibility to expand and improve services for homeless people in North Carolina, the state's "Project Homecoming" was developed to assist programs in Durham, Charlotte, and the Sandhills area.

Focus of Statewide Program:

The focus is on providing intensive case management services, support services, and housing assistance to families as they move from transitional to permanent housing. The challenge is to provide continuing support for families as they experience the complexities of independent living.

The Family Jump Start Program/Case Management

What's it about.

* Long term case management and mentoring services provided to a minimum of 140 families (over a 3 year period) graduating from transitional living situations

* Families will have completed requirements of their transitional programs (such as crisis counseling, job readiness, job and housing search and independent living skill development)

* Most families participating will have a low prognosis for maintaining permanent housing without long term case management

* Housing counseling will be given to 90 other graduates of transitional programs who do not require intensive case management to make the transition to successful independent living.

* Families will be graduates from and referred by transitional programs such as Plaza Place, the Salvation Army Shelter for Women and Children, the Shelter for Battered Women and the TAS Crisis Management Program, A Child's Place

* Jump start will provide long term case management and monitoring that has not been available in the past for high risk homeless families once they move from transitional programs. "High risk" is defined as multiple problem families who have exhausted services or have never known how to access them in the first place. Without long term case management they are in danger of repeating the behavior patterns which resulted in their homelessness.

* The Selection Process

Criteria for participating families

1. Families must express interest in the program
2. Recommendations from referring agencies indicate families have used their services well and that they are motivated to improve their lives
3. Certification from the referring agency that the family is progressing towards milestones set forth in their individual development and permanency plan.

4. The family is employed or enrolled in and making satisfactory progress in JOBS or other job training opportunities.

5. The family must have and maintain a minimum of $250 in savings to use as a safety net for use as a safety net for independent living (May be waived if part of plan involves enrollment in a subsidized housing program).

6. Families must sign appropriate releases of information allowing case managers to access records, etc.

* Final selection for participation will be an interagency committee composed of a representative from each agency providing support services. For instance, by including representatives from child care, educational and job training areas on the selection committee, we insure the availability of these services in a final plan for the family and that the services are comprehensive based on need.

Case Management Model

- Caseloads will average 12 to 15 at one time.
- Staff will receive standardized training with other grantees.
- The case management model includes the following:
  1. Need assessment
     a. Educational and job training
     b. Health care
     c. Alcohol and other drug treatment and counseling
     d. Household management training
     e. Consumer education
     f. Development of landlord/tenant relationship skills
     g. Housing location counseling
     h. Community service access training
  2. Specific and comprehensive individual development and housing permanency plan
     a. Defined roles for families and service providers
     b. Constant updating
     c. Ongoing feedback from service providers
  3. Establish procedures for families to access support services
  4. Counseling and problem solving support
     a. Case manager will collaborate with families as well as with agencies
     b. Case manager will advocate as necessary within the social services network
     c. Case manager will teach family to be their own advocates with these agencies
  5. Ongoing monitoring of families' changing needs and progress over time
  6. Introduction or mentors at the appropriate time to provide enrichment activities during the tenth month of the program.

- Case managers will be out stationed as necessary
  1. Could be based at a Neighborhood Services center
  2. Could be placed separately at TAS, Plaza Place, A Child's Place

- Case Managers will be supervised by TAS.

- Individual service plans will be primary instrument identifying long and short range goal for each family.
  1. Plans will outline support services needed to meet goals
  2. Plans will outline how services will be delivered
  3. Milestones will be monitored
  4. Service contracts will be used
  5. Service providers will be informed of progress on an ongoing basis
  6. Plans will be agreed upon prior to admission into the program and will be based on initial assessments.
• The Family Jump Start Consortium
  • Oversees coordinated service delivery
  • Committed to focused, comprehensive effort to prevent continued homelessness for target families - about 140 high risk, low-income families poised to move toward permanent housing
  • Activities are aimed toward stabilizing families and preparing them for the case management and housing services
  • Aside from subsidies for first and last months rent and moving assistance, the Jump Start Consortium will seek to problem solve in finding creative solutions to "old" problems such as
    1. revision and waiving of agency policies impeding a family's progress toward upward mobility;
    2. creation of new programs such as Brown and Glenn's "Sweat Equity Program" for rent reductions and Tenant-Landlord Mediation in place of eviction proceedings
    3. prioritizing families for affordable housing and CHA's Family Self-Sufficiency programs,
    4. training and use of community volunteers as mentors through Mecklenburg Ministries,
    5. prioritizing families seeking government entitlement programs,
    6. housing and housekeeping assistance
  • Responsible for identifying, discussing, and resolving issues that effect interagency participation
  • Responsible for assuring that case managers meet special needs of their families
Description of Need
Charlotte Statistics

- 7000 families on the waiting list for subsidized housing
- 12,000 receive AFDC
- 15,000 families receive food stamps
- 47,900 people (10% of population) live below poverty level
- between 2,000 and 3,000 people live on the street in any given night
- 34% of homeless are families
- 11,603 families with children live below poverty level
- requests for emergency and general assistance have doubled each of the last three years

_Gaps in Service for Homeless_

1. _Inadequate levels of service to meet the needs of homeless families_
   - The number of children being placed in foster care due to lack of safe, decent places to live out stripped resources
   - Children were separated from families due to chronic homelessness

2. _Lack of long term case management for families coming out of transitional living situations_

3. _Current service delivery is fragmented and loosely held together_
   - clients manipulated and abused service providers

4. _Overly complex and eligibility requirements results in delays of services and recurrence of homelessness_
   - current regulations and policies require independent certification of need by each agency so there is re-certification of some information from each agency from which the client seeks assistance
   - third party verification sources may not cooperate causing delays and denial of services

5. _Client gets lost within programs_
   - at least 30 agencies and local initiatives provide services to homeless families
   - each agency has own guidelines and instructions

6. _Internalized barriers of families - adults and children who have multiplicity of psychological problems from past failures and disappointments_

_How Jump Start will Handle Identified Gaps_

1. Jump Start will improve coordination of resources and level of services received by families
2. Long term case management will overcome one of the most often identified gaps

3. Consortium agencies have committed to working together to share resources in order to provide a continuum of services

4. There will be permanency planning for each family that are initiated as soon as family enters program

5. Consortium agencies will share information to reduce paperwork and duplications of required certifications. A common application/assessment instrument will be used on every family that enters the program

6. The continuum of consortium services will track progress of clients and keep them from getting "lost"

7. Families that need long term help will be linked with agencies and will be followed-up by case management and mentors

Coordinated Services

Teams

1. Housing Assistance Team - Lead Agency - Charlotte Housing Authority

   Prior to the client family contracting for assistance under Jump Start, a permanency assessment will be made regarding the housing services required to obtain and maintain permanent housing. A housing counselor will develop and monitor housing services as part of the service plan

   a. Housing counseling and housing search assistance are integral parts of Jump Start

   Agencies involved: Charlotte Housing Authority - Lead Agency
   Family Housing Services
   Charlotte-Mecklenburg Housing Partnership
   Charlotte-Mecklenburg Community Relations

   b. Families will be linked to subsidized housing or locally assisted housing as necessary

   Agencies involved: Charlotte Housing Authority

   c. Families will have access to economic resources that will assist them in paying security deposits, first and last month's rent - or money owed previous landlord

   Agencies involved: Crisis Assistance Ministry
   Family Housing
   Landlord Tenant Mediation
   City of Charlotte Community Development
   Legal Services

   d. Assistance for moving expense and household furnishings

   Agencies involved: Crisis Assistance Ministry/Furniture Ministry

Many want a chance
at new apartments

By Palace Williams

In the neighborhood of McMillan Wood, a family of four could rent a two-bedroom unit for $1200 a month. A four-room apartment in the same area costs around $1000. A one-bedroom apartment in the area costs around $700.

The family, who have lived in the area for over ten years, express their desire to stay in the neighborhood. They believe it is the best option for their family.

The local housing market is tight, with many families struggling to find affordable housing. The city is working on a new housing project to address this issue.

The project is expected to provide 100 new units, including both apartments and single-family homes. The city hopes to complete the project within the next year.

PROS / CONS OF
PROJECT BASED AND TENANT-BASED
Rental Assistance Programs

Definition:

Project-Based Assistance: The subsidy is tied to the unit, not the family.

Tenant-Based Assistance: The subsidy is tied to the family, not the unit.

Over the last 20 years HUD has provided Public Housing Authorities funds for both Project-Based and Tenant-Based Rental Assistance Programs. The Charlotte Housing Authority (CHA) currently operates a combination of project-based and tenant-based assistance programs as listed below.

Pros and Cons

Project-Based

1. Project-Based assistance provides a guaranteed occupant and rent to the property owner provided that he complies with contract obligations.

2. Project-Based assistance reduces turn-over rate.

3. Project-Based properties can be pre-approved by a committee thereby ensuring that suitable housing is selected for the program.

4. Project-Based assistance provide housing already available to applicants selected from the waiting list.

Tenant-Based

1. Tenant-Based assistance allows the family the opportunity to choose any rental unit on the private market that complies with program guidelines.

2. The rental assistance travels with the family on year to year basis, if the family desires to move. (Section 8 Voucher Program, assistance is portable from state to state.)

3. CHA Waiting List indicates that more families prefer tenant-based assistance.

a. Direct subsidies to tenants,
b. Second mortgage write-down for home ownership,
c. Below market-rate financing through partnership arrangement, and/or
d. Other subsidy mechanisms as approved by City Council.

3. Coordinate employment and social services targeted to persons receiving city-subsidized housing with a long-term goal of promoting self-sufficiency.

4. Support nonprofit efforts to develop low-income housing that meet the intent of the City's Housing Policy.

B. Charlotte Housing Authority

1. Manage in an acceptable manner the existing stock of City-owned subsidized housing.

2. Develop project proposals to provide new housing opportunities for people currently in public housing or on the waiting list.

3. Create housing development and management strategies which promote self-sufficiency.

4. Administer direct subsidy program.

5. Administer and maintain a waiting list for low-income assisted housing.

C. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Housing Partnership

1. Mobilize private and nonprofit financing for development of low-income housing opportunities.

2. Create development opportunities for low-income housing, and serve as a catalyst and clearing house for public/private housing development ventures.

3. Develop and coordinate neighborhood opportunities for economic self-sufficiency in conjunction with housing opportunity.
IV. Overview

A. Plan Assumptions: The following assumptions are useful in reviewing the goals and strategies of this housing plan. They reflect, in part, the experience gained by the City over the past decade in housing activities.

1. Preservation of existing housing to avoid future deterioration and demolition is the most cost effective approach to the housing issue.

2. The City's code enforcement ordinances have been strengthened.

3. The City should leverage its dollars for new construction rather than fund 100% of the cost.

4. Housing for the very low income requires both a construction subsidy and an operating subsidy.

5. The City cannot solve the housing problems alone; private efforts and continuing federal support are required.

B. Resources: Total resources for housing in 1987-88 were expected to be $8.3 million. Over a five-year period total dollars will average $6.6 million annually. Those dollars are shown below by source of funds.

(See attached table for actual funding for each program by funding source and by fiscal year.)
