- He cited Kannapolis and the Medical Research Center as an example of what Charlotte should court. He believes there are many very bright people in Charlotte and would like to see more come with a 'mini RTP.' The more educated tax base (masters, PhD's) would increase tax base and bring greater economic development. Economic Development is the driving force behind this idea. When Charlotte had IBM, that was kind of what we need now, but IBM is gone. To cite Johnson and Wales as a kind of example, after it opened its doors, a culinary explosion occurred along with Economic Development in NoDa, Plaza Midwood, and across the City. An RTP would have a similar effect with applied technology.

Enhancements for bikes and pedestrians. It's one of the reasons why they moved here. You can live a health lifestyle. Why these amenities exist in a few neighborhoods, we need more bike/ped infrastructure. Wants to see the City really provide leadership in the area as the City grows/builds out. Also wants to see the City continue to invest in transit like the streetcar. As for the bus, she'd like te CItY do better marketing, improve the CATS app, and make it easy to use cash/card.
