Reduce, Reuse, Re-Cycle: Celebrating 10 Years of Sustain Charlotte's Biketoberfest

On October 27, Sustain Charlotte kicked off the tenth year of its Biketoberfest event. Biketoberfest is a fun day adventuring through the City of Charlotte while simultaneously supporting Sustain Charlotte's mission to inspire choices that lead to a healthy, equitable, and vibrant community for generations to come. This event is a wonderful way to highlight the many great steps forward that Charlotte has made towards better connectivity, sustainability, and equity throughout the city.

Resources:

- North Carolina Climate Action Corps: The North Carolina Climate Action Corps is an opportunity for AmeriCorps members to focus on helping North Carolina achieve its climate goals, while also strengthening community resilience and offering participants opportunities for personal and professional growth. Those interested can find volunteer opportunities to serve in the NC Climate Action Corps and a list of recommended actions to take at home. Learn More.
- Podcast: America Adapts: The Climate Change Podcast. America Adapts is a long-running podcast that explores the challenges presented by adapting to climate change, showcasing the new ways that governments across the world are responding to these new challenges and what the best policy responses might be.

Your engagement means a lot to us, and we're committed to bringing you the latest information and resources. Thank you for working with us to help Charlotte strive to lead as a global city by continuously improving, protecting, and preserving the environment, its community, and economy, while ensuring equity and resilience - for today's and future generations.
